Introduction

The maps shown here was part of Works Progress Administration (WPA) that took place in Danvers in 1938. When it comes to the modern times, it is not clear when this project first came about or who developed it, but what is known is that the scans of the materials were done between August and September of 2007. Because the Danvers Archival Center at the Peabody Institute Library in Danvers has many of the cemetery records and maps, it would appear that they originated there and most likely the previous archivist Nancy C. Barthelemy took photos of the maps for reasons that are not clear.

The end result and use of these scans and images is not known. The PDFs were discovered in December of 2018 in a box of DVDs that contained various information and digitized materials that had yet to be made publicly available. Upon discovering the project it was determined by the Peabody Institute's Archivist to make these materials more widely available to the general public and the PDFs that were created and made into booklet that could be distributed. The end result is a document that will live on the Internet Archive with a physical copy being placed in the Vertical File Collection.

Should any new information be discovered or noted this booklet will undergo additional editions and updates and necessary.
